

This mini camp revolves around a mock "escape room" in students' computers. They must learn code-testing strategies, detect and fix errors in flawed code, track information, work with one another, and write functions to work their way through the escape room. Some experience with Python is suggested, but beginners are welcome. We encourage beginners to learn the basics with <https://futurecoder.io/course> .